Motion Picture News A Daily Feature

This daily naws feature of The Washington Herald is for the bane-fit of everybody interested in motion pictures.

Suggestions, comments, criticisms, inquiries, and questions invited Address communications to Motion Picture Editor, Washington Herald.

Anna Held is to play Juliet and Julian Ellings. Romeo, in front of the motion picture camera. Mr. Ellings has signed a contract for ExGoW with Thomas H. Juce, managing director and vice president of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, to appear before the lens and show American women just how he transforms himself. From the athletic person hir really is to the charming Mrs. Monty in the "Fascinsting Widow." Mr. Eltinge will also appear in a flin production for Mr. Inco with Miss Held. After Mr. Eltinge and Miss Held appear in Romeo and Juliet, Mr. Eltinge will, just to show his versatility, cur about and play Juliet to Duntin Farnum's Romeo.

Prank Bennett, formerly leading man for Florence Lawrence, his completed arrangements with the Mutual to appear under D. W. Griffith's direction. Mr. Bennett first attracted the attention of the theatergoing public by his artifation performances in "The Hallwit," and in "The Mayor and the Mandurist" in "The Mayor and the Mandurist" in the subject of the subject of Bob Daly is producing a one-real consoly-drawns wish sixty children in it. In one real it concerns the problem of the "noor little rich children," who while have all the exterior comforts of life, are saidy neglected so far as affection is concerned, and the ultimate referentation of their parents. The children in ejection go to the barn of an afternoon with their parents clothes and invite all their friends to witness their show-admission, two jobs. Uswittingly they blay a drawns of their own lives, implicating their doctors for children. The parents, watching from without through a crack, see themselves as in a mirror and report.

Mr. Seay's elation over "Within the Erreny's Lines" is somewhat mixed with pain, grief, and sorrow over another incident which is still being taked about at the studie, Having finished his multiple red, Mr. Seay began work on a story about an orphan asyium, some scenes of which required a lot of very scenes of which required a lot of very sy about an orphan assume of which required a lot bit hathen. Though necessari and Mr. Seay conferred with his camera min, Yaie Bows and Andy Clark shuffled the infants. Though necessarily down with great need, the transfer was very complete and which the women returned to the children after the taking of the sorn, there was another score far more trage; than that which had just been enacted before the camera. As each mother discovered the await train there was a scramble of frightened but dremmind somen, sean searoning wind; for her own child. As each one discovered the preclose infant she shatched if up and carried it off as if in feather than the search of the search demand for the lives of the perpetuation of the outrage, but they had wisely decided into to larry. But from the pointed remarks which are addressed to them later by Mr. Seay it is safe to assume that it will not secur again.

(Coppright, 1913.) COURTESY—it costs little and is worth much.

It is the most inexpensive to carry in regular stock by everybody, everywhere, who comes in contact

A friend of mine, a manager of several hundred salesmen, told me that he considered courtesy the most essential element in successful sales-manship; that he would rather have a courteous salesman than one possessing any other one quality.

While I should not place courtesy in salesmanship on as high a plane as does my friend, I believe that profitable selling is not possible the rooming clerk had by mistake given me a room which was a part of an expensive suite, and further, that the suite was engaged, begin-ning the next day, by a man who would occupy it for several months,

He was a peculiar sort of fellow, who, if he could not have the entire suite, including my room, would

Had I been approached by a dis courteons landlord or clerk, and or-dered out of the room, I should have left the hotel. Instead, I as-sured the proprietor that I would accept any accommodation to help him out of his difficulty. I gladly went to the inconvenience of mov-ing, because of the courtesy shown me, and I should not have found fault if I had been given an inferior Discourtesy seems to be everywhere, and to thrive in any envi-ronment. Much of it is due to a false sense of independence on the part of those who really have little right to exercise it. It has been said that the men highest up are more courteous than those at the bottom, and that the occupants of inferior positions, unfairly jealous of others, are brusque and facking

Few salesmen, especially those behind the counter, realize that the customer invariably chooses a courteous salesman er saleswoman, and, if the courtesy is sustained, becomes their regular customer,
